

You Tell Us

...your views on the transportation planning process in Portland/Vancouver area.

Transportation is the key...

The roads, rails, paths, and trails we travel from one place to another form the framework of our communities. Metropolitan Planning Organizations (such as the Regional Transportation Council of Southwest Washington and the Portland Metro), in coordination with the public, help identify future transportation needs and coordinate highway and transit investments in urbanized areas. The Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) and the Federal Transit Administration (FTA) are responsible for certifying (every 4 years) that the planning processes of the Metropolitan Planning Organizations are consistent with Federal requirements. Representatives from FHWA and FTA will be conducting its review in October and want to hear your thoughts on the transportation planning process during two public meetings. The meeting schedule is:
